Uber Miami Email Instructs Drivers How to Illegally Serve South Florida Airports

Uber has sent an email to its drivers encouraging and instructing them how to illegally serve South Florida airports, including Miami International Airport.

The email begins by acknowledging Uber drivers have received tickets for picking up and dropping off passengers at South Florida airports. Uber then offers the following tips for evading airport authorities:

- “Keep your Uber phone off your windshield – put it down in your cupholder
- Ask the rider if they would sit up front
- Use the lanes farthest from the terminal curbside for pickup and drop off
- Call your rider to ensure an efficient and easy pickup”

Uber further encourages its drivers to pursue this illegal activity by reminding them that it will reimburse the cost of tickets and provide legal support.

“Uber is actively encouraging drivers to break the law at South Florida airports,” said Dave Sutton, spokesperson for ‘Who’s Driving You?’. “Uber shows complete disregard for the serious concerns involved in airport security. Uber may be able to pay for driver’s tickets, but it won’t be able to fix the records of drivers who incur legal problems. Uber is dangerous and self-serving in the extreme.”
